MPP Academy students will participate in weekly academic and career preparation activities, 2-4 hours per week, during the academic year (Fall, Winter, and Spring semesters).

Goal 2035

Our big goal is to increase the diversity among doctors who are underrepresented in the physician workforce from the current rate of 11% to 25% by 2035. We are committed to building a pipeline of future medical students, as early as 4th grade, that is more representative of the U.S. population.

International Experience Trip

1 University Location Outside of the U.S.A

- ✓ Students will attend a 1 week on-campus MPP Academy summer intensive program at a well-respected University/medical school outside of the U.S. This study abroad trip will raise global awareness through students experiencing first-hand what it's like to practice medicine internationally.
- ✓ Additionally, students will learn about the social, economical, and environmental factors that affect the health of patients and populations in a healthcare system outside of the USA, with a particular focus on understanding the health inequities that exist between patient populations.

Due to COVID-19, the international experience trip has moved online. For more information, please inquire with the MPP Academy office.

- ✓ Unique Hybrid Model: Opportunity to travel to three different universities for in-person class sessions and interact virtually in live face-to-face online class sessions using a robust online learning management system.
- ✓ Capstone Project with Support in Thematic Groups: Small groups of students using a common approach work collaboratively to complete their own "Individual Personal Strategic Action Plan" to discover their core personal values, conduct a career field analysis, choose and explore their career of interest and specialty, and develop a road-map to reach their career goal.
- ✓ Intimate Cohort of U.S. and International Students: Students interact with highly accomplished class mates from different communities across the globe that have similar professional ambitions.
